Serenbe, Georgia

Start a balanced life together in the dreamy forests and fields of Serenbe, a holistic resort outside of Atlanta (serenbe.com). Wellness is the focus in all areas—food (the on-site farm supplies the restaurants); the arts (you'll enjoy ballet and theater, and mingle with artists-in-residence); and fitness (you'd expect nature walks, but what about goat yoga?). Then spend a few genteel days by the sea in Savannah, a porch-laden town that's also heavy on design, from the modern Brice Hotel in a former Coca-Cola factory (bricehotel.com) to the venerable Alex Raskin Antiques, housed in an old mansion (alexraskinantiques.com), to ShopSCAD, a boutique that carries new work by students and alums from the Savannah College of Art and Design (shopscad.com). Much like your marriage, as this town gets older, it just seems to get better. Case in point: In 1938, the Grey was a Greyhound bus terminal. Today it's an award-winning restaurant serving Southern food with a twist (thegreyrestaurant.com).
